New British Army Rushing From North of France to Help Save City From Complete Destruction--Belgian King Saves Troops From Trap

Belgians Are Fighting Desperately to Save City and One Report Says the Germans Were Repulsed on Left Bank of River Nethe.

LONDON, Oct. 9 [Central News Cable].—A new British army is advancing toward Antwerp from the north of France, where it united with a French force at (name of town stricken out by censor).

The British forces mentioned in the despatches from Antwerp Wednesday as co-operating with the Belgians are believed to be the advance guard of this army. The desperation of the German assaults on the Belgian fortress is ascribed to their knowledge of the approach of this army and their effort to accomplish the downfall of the defenders before the reinforcements arrive.

Rumors of this new army have been heard in London for nearly a week and the German cavalry raids, which have reached virtually to the north coast of France in the last few days, are thought to have encountered it, as no allied force of which definite knowledge has reached the public, has been operating so far north.

Belgian King Escapes Trap, Leads Army From Antwerp

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Confirmation of the report that King Albert had led a large part of the Belgian army out of Antwerp and had thus foiled the Germans in their effort to "bottle up" the Belgian field forces, causes much joy in London.

A report from Ghent says the King and his army left Antwerp before the Germans had forced their way across River Scheldt, and perhaps just in time to avoid being forced to retire into the city. It is said the Belgian troops reached Selzaette, a village near the Dutch border, yesterday. This village is 25 miles from Antwerp. One report is that the King will proceed with his troops to Ostend, the new temporary capital. Another is that he will form a juncture with other Belgian troops and continue to harass the Germans. Still another conjecture is that the Belgian forces will join the Allies (if they have not already done so) and aid them in the big battle now in progress in the north of France, where help is sorely needed.

London believes that, with the escape of King Albert and his army, the object of the German bombardment of Antwerp has failed. If, as reported, the King left only enough troops to man the defenses, the capture of the city would be of little military value.

London has no fear of Antwerp's use, if Germany captures it, as a Zeppelin base. Germany already has a Zeppelin base at Cologne, only a few hours distant aerially, from Antwerp. The city is not available for use as a naval base, because of necessity of passage through neutral Dutch waters.

The Amsterdam correspondent of the Reuter Agency, in a despatch filed this afternoon, says:

"The uninterrupted thundering of guns at Antwerp was heard in Rosendaal throughout the night. The firing slackened a little in the early morning, but it has now resumed with full force. The sky last night was made red by the flames of burning Antwerp."

[Rosendaal is in Holland, about twenty miles north of Antwerp.]

Capture of One Desperado
Clears Up Series of Cigar Store Raids.

AUTO AIDS ONE ESCAPE.

One Robber Gets Away With Forty Watches Worth $800
—Some Plunder Found.

Following the shooting and robbery of Joseph Sareky in his jewelry store at No. 1674 Broadway, Brooklyn, a few minutes after noon to-day, one of the four men who were implicated in the bold crime was caught, confessed his part and gave the police the names of the gang of cigar store thieves, of which he was a member, which have been perpetrating a series of daring daylight hold-ups.

Acting on this confession, Inspector Faurot, at Manhattan Headquarters, rushed detectives to a flat at No. 4 East Fourth street, which had been named as a rendezvous by John Gastin, the confessing thief, and there they caught Harry Wallon, an ex-convict, and William Usoff, both described by Gastin as members of the cigar store gang of robbers.

Ten-year-old Joseph Sackinger, the son of a policeman whose home is at No. 752 Decatur street, half a block from the scene of to-day's shooting, saw a man thrown a brown bag into an ash can in front of his house and told his father about it. The bag was found to contain six gold watches, some chains and small pieces of jewelry, later identified as part of the plundered stock by Sareky's son. Forty watches valued at $800 were taken from Sareky's store.

Abraham Morris, driver of an automobile which has its stand in front of the Little Hungary restaurant on East Houston street, was arrested late this afternoon and identified by Gastin, the "squealer," as the one who had driven the bandit car to and from the scene of the robbery.

Sareky's place of business is what is known as a half-store, with only one show window and the door adjacent to it. He has no clerk and is behind the single long counter alone all day. Yesterday a young fellow came into his store and bought a gold-washed mesh bag. To-day at 12:15 o'clock he reappeared, accompanied by a larger and older man. He extended the bag, saying that its sliding was defective and that he wanted it re-washed.

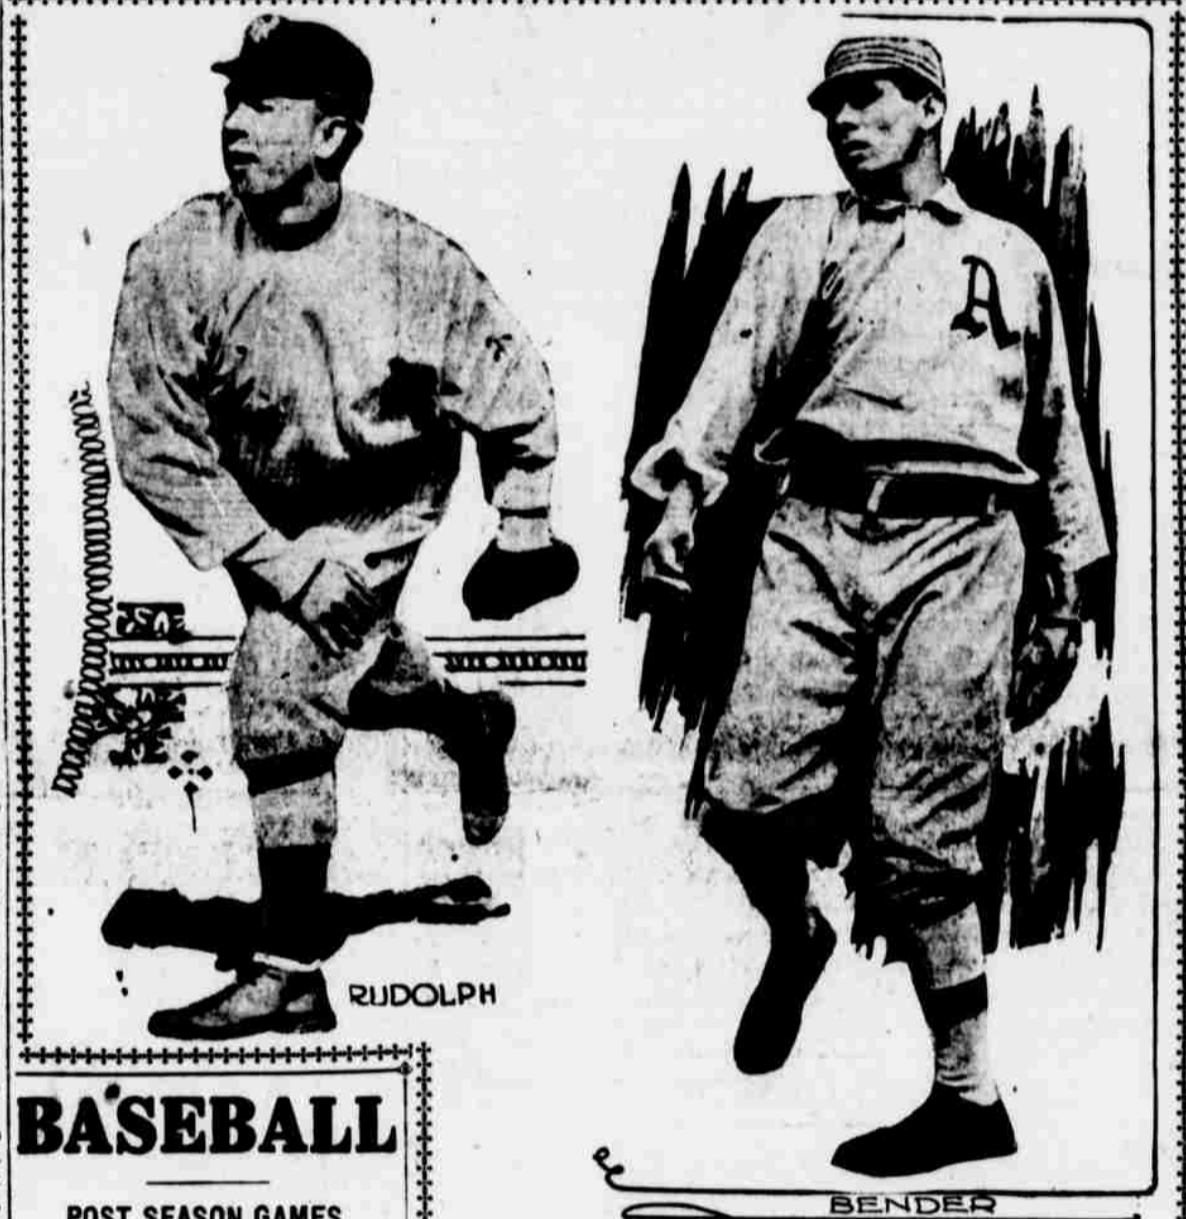

One of the two men, Sareky has not been able to tell which, held a revolver at his abdomen and fired. Still the plucky jeweller continued to struggle, and a second shot in the right side of the head stretched him out on the floor. The two thieves then turned to the watch case and swept its contents clean.

Herman Schachner, a paint store proprietor at No. 1672 Broadway, and Louis Selikow, a tailor, whose shop adjoins that of Sareky on the other side, heard the shots and ran to the door of the jewelry store. One of the thieves bowed them over as he pushed out, turned the corner of Macdonough street and jumped into an automobile standing there. A man at the wheel immediately put on power and the machine sped through Macdonough street at high speed.

A policeman on duty at a registry booth at No. 1663 Broadway also heard the shots and ran into the store in time to intercept the younger of the two thieves as he was trying to get out of the door. The wounded jeweller had managed to cling to him long enough to prevent his escape. The hold-up man closed with the policeman and tried to trip him, but he was securely handcuffed.

ALLIES RENEW ASSAULTS ON BOTH GERMAN WINGS

Paris Reports That Cavalry Is Fighting North of Lille—Believes Germans Must Retreat Soon in East.

PARIS, Oct. 9.—[United Press].—No change in the general situation was officially announced in the 3 o'clock communique issued at Bordeaux and telegraphed here this afternoon. It was stated that the disposition of troops remains without change. Cavalry fighting continues on the left and in the Woëvre region an artillery duel is in progress.

The official announcement said: "The general situation has undergone no change."

"On our left wing the two opposing bodies of cavalry are still operating to the north of Lille and of La Bassée, and the battle continues along the line marked by the regions of Lens, Arras, Bray-sur-Somme, Chaulnes, Roye and Laassey."

"On the centre of the Oise and on the Meuse, only actions of minor importance have been reported."

"On our right, in the Woëvre district, there has been an artillery contest along the entire front."

"In Lorraine, in the Vosges and in Alsace, there has been no change."

Belief that the pendulum of success in the battle of the Aisne is now swinging forward favorably to the allies was universal here to-day. The War Office communique was most laconic. It showed positions in the centre of the long drawn battle line practically unchanged. But it carried confirmation of the reports that the allies are now able to hold this line in the centre and at the same time have sufficient forces vigorously to assault both the German wings.

A retrograde movement, a crumpling in of the lines at either end would mean retreat by the centre. Military experts here are confident that this is impending.

Pressing back of German forces in the neighborhood of Verdun is regarded as particularly significant. The French artillery is proving itself more than a match for the German guns in this section.

Cavalry reconnaissance in force on the far western end of the line has resulted in severe losses inflicted on the German cavalry lines north of Lille.

(The Evening World's Baseball Expert.)

(Special to The Evening World.)

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 9.—The Braves won the first game of the World's Series by a score of 7 to 1. It was a complete upset of form. Not only did the longshot of the series beat the three-time World's Champions, but they gave them a beating such as the still astounded Philadelphia rooters will never forget. The veteran Bender, on whom the Athletics had put their main hope, was driven from the box the first time in his career during a World's Series.

The Braves went after him without a thought of fear, and this soon took from his face that sarcastic smile which has been such a factor in former big games for the title. Against him Dick Rudolph, hero of Boston and the Bronx, was the embodiment of cool, calculating nerve. He held the much vaunted sluggers down to five paltry hits while his experienced opponent was pummeled for eleven clean drives.

This gives Boston a big edge on the series. Not only does it do that

In figures, but it removes the one man they were apprehensive about. Stallings declared immediately after the game that he would win the championship to a certainty. On a test of nerve it is certain that the Braves stood it while the Athletics did not.

The attendance was 20,562. The gross receipts were $45,433. Of this the players get $36,905 to be divided into a 60 and 40 per cent. basis.
